Introduction

1. This circular sets out primary initial teacher training (ITT) intake targets for the Centres of Teacher Education for 2012/13.

Background

2. We informed you of the primary and secondary ITT intake targets which have been set for the sector by the Welsh Government for 2012/13 in October 2011 (Circular W11/34HE). The circular included the letter from the Welsh Government setting out the basis for the targets.
3. For secondary intake targets, we have to put proposals for the distribution of these targets amongst providers to the Welsh Government, as requested, for approval before publication. We anticipate that this process of approval will be completed by early February at the latest.

Primary intake targets 2012/13

4. Primary ITT intake targets for the three Centres of Teacher Education for 2012/13 are set out at Annex A.
5. The sector intake target for primary ITT and the distribution between primary undergraduate (UG) and PGCE places remains the same as in 2011/12, namely 750 intakes in total, comprising 300 undergraduate and 450 PGCE intakes.
6. As no provider receiving primary intake targets in 2012/13 over-recruited in 2011/12 beyond the limits set by HEFCW, no penalties to 2012/13 targets have been incurred. Allocations to the Centres of Teacher Education for Primary UG and PGCE intake targets therefore remain unchanged from 2011/12.
7. We will keep under review the distribution of primary ITT targets across the three Centres, particularly in the context of the development of a regional dimension to the planning and delivery of higher education identified in For our Future. We will also monitor various aspects of the make up of the ITT student population, including numbers of students receiving training to teach through the medium of Welsh as well as English, and the diversity of entrants to ITT.

Controls on ITT recruitment

8. In the annual letters we receive from the Welsh Government setting out the intake targets, we are asked to maintain our efforts to ensure that over-recruitment against targets does not occur. This has been particularly the case for primary provision which is traditionally popular amongst applicants and we have had penalties for over-recruitment to primary provision in place for a number of years, revising these as appropriate from time to time.

9. From 2011/12 a maximum student number, determined annually, applies to HEFCW-fundable home and EU full-time undergraduate (UG) and PGCE new entrant student numbers, with penalty arrangements for over-recruitment against this maximum.
10. We are concerned that, with the introduction of the new tuition fees regime from 2012/13 and the consequent changes to HEFCW's methods for allocating funding, the overall maximum student number and existing ITT penalties, may not of themselves be a sufficient deterrent against over- or under-recruitment to ITT. For primary ITT, for example, provided the total numbers remain within an institution's overall maximum student number, then if a provider were having difficulty recruiting in non-ITT areas, it might compensate by increased recruitment to primary ITT. We are also concerned that the changes may influence behaviour on recruitment to secondary ITT.
11. At the beginning of January 2012 therefore, we published revised controls to encourage recruitment to initial teacher training (ITT) intake targets and to discourage over-recruitment, to be effective from the 2012/13 academic year (Circular W12/01HE). These controls comprise retaining the existing penalties for over-recruitment to primary intake targets, together with adjustments to an institution's maximum student number the following year where recruitment in a particular phase or level of ITT exceeds five per cent.
12. The controls on primary ITT recruitment are set out in Annex B. The full controls, including secondary ITT, can be found in Circular W12/01HE.

Revised controls on ITT primary recruitment from 2012/13

The revised arrangements apply to recruitment against ITT primary intake targets from the 2012/13 academic year, with any penalties applied to 2013/14 ITT intake targets and maximum student numbers.

- The existing penalties which are applied to intake targets for over-recruitment to primary provision at the Centres of Teacher Education remain in place. These are:
 - If a Centre over-recruits by more than five per cent or five students (whichever is the greater) against its primary intake target in one year at either undergraduate or postgraduate level, a five per cent reduction will be applied to its intake target for that level for the following year. These intakes will not be returned to the Centre after the penalty year. Therefore if a Centre over-recruits in 2012/13, the penalty will be applied to 2013/14 intake targets.
 - A penalty for more significant over-recruitment. Thus, if a Centre over-recruits by more than ten per cent in one year at either undergraduate or postgraduate level, its target for that level for the following year will be cut by ten per cent.

In determining whether this second penalty will be applied, there will be no rounding. Immediately the over-recruitment is over ten per cent by any fraction, the penalty will be applied. For example: An institution has an intake target of 58. The calculation of ten per cent over-recruitment is 5.8 full-time equivalent students. The institution over-recruits against its target by six students (10.3%). Arguments that the institution could not have recruited 0.8 of a student for an ITT course or that the 10.3% should be rounded to ten per cent would not be accepted. The ten per cent over-recruitment threshold has been breached and therefore the penalty will be applied.

This penalty will be reduced to 5% in the year after, provided that the institution has not again over-recruited above the specified limits.

- Additionally, the number of students recruited over the five per cent threshold allowed against the institution's ITT primary intake target at either undergraduate or postgraduate level will be deducted from the institution's maximum student number for the following year. It will be possible to apply this penalty on an institutional basis: the partners in the South East and South West Centres of Teacher Education each have either UG or PGCE primary provision, not both, and in the North and Mid Wales Centre all primary provision is located at Bangor University.
